

JAVIER MEGIAS FINISHES SECOND OVERALL AT TOUR DE KOREA

Team Novo Nordisk, the world's first all-diabetes professional cycling team, earned its best general classification result to date when Spaniard Javier Megias was runner-up overall at the eight-day Tour de Korea. The result serves as a career best overall finish at a UCI race for the 32-year-old Megias.

JOLIEN D'HOORE WINS THIRD STRAIGHT FLANDERS DIAMOND TOUR

Wiggle High5 Pro Cycling's Jolien D'hoore proved once again that she is the Belgian rider to beat on the road, despite spending most of the season so far training on the track, with a third successive victory in the Flanders Diamond Tour in the centre of the city of Antwerp. The Belgian National Champion outsprinted the pack at the end of a flat, but attacking race around the Antwerp region, after a near-perfect lead out from black and orange teammates Amy Pieters and Chloe Hosking.

DID YOU KNOW THAT....

Yaroslav Popovych, now retired from racing and special guest at Colnago factory last week, has worn for the first time the pink jersey of the Giro in 2004 in Trieste.
