Did you know that...

The last Colnago logo: the ace of clubs (trans: known as the ace of flowers in Italian)

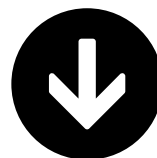

Why the ace of flowers? The idea came from Bruno Raschi, who wrote that Michele Dancelli (former champion) had won the Milan Sanremo of 1970 on a bicycle that was in bloom. That evening Ernesto Colnago met him in a restaurant in Laigueglia and the great journalist asked to Colnago: "Ernesto, why don't you make a symbol of the victory?". Colnago liked the idea right away. "Sanremo, city of flowers, and Raschi had written that the bicycle was in bloom, and I was hoping in my heart that I would become an ace in the world of bicycles. As soon as I got home, I made a new logo, the ace of flowers!".
