

THE 2016 WORLD CYCLOCROSS CHAMPION SPECIAL GUEST @ COLNAGO FACTORY

Wout Van Aert has spent the entire thursday afternoon (March 17th) at the company visiting the production, the museum and the showroom. Ernesto Colnago gave him a special watch with gold case as a present for the big result, also he was able to see the prototype bike that he will ride the next racing season.

Team Novo Nordisk's Italian sprinter, Andrea Peron, rode in the main breakaway at the 107th edition of Milan-San Remo for the second consecutive year. The 293-kilometer race is the longest one-day race in the world. "Today was a good day for Team Novo Nordisk and the riders showed they can do well at this level. We got Andrea in the breakaway and David Lozano finished close to the front," Team Novo Nordisk's Senior Vice President, Athletics Vassili Davidenko said. "Javier Megias crashed, but we hope it's nothing too serious. Overall, the riders showed great improvement over last year and I think we are ready for bigger targets."

Wiggle High5 Pro Cycling's Emma Johansson came within just a few inches of the podium of the Trofeo Alfredo Binda - Comune di Cittiglio this afternoon, as came down to a fight between just eight riders. The race, run just to the north of the city of Varese, was the third in the 2016 Women's World Tour, and was won by World Champion Lizzie Armitstead (Boels-Dolmans) as she chased across to lone attacker Jolanda Neff (Servetto-Footon) in the closing kilometres.

DID YOU KNOW THAT....

The world title won by Wout Van Aert this year is the ninth won by Colnago in Cyclocross
